CATCHES BOYS BRINGING OUT STOLEN GOODS

Detective Sergeant Kellam Investigates
Fire in Poolroom on North Twenty-Fifth Street.

Detective Sergeant Louis Kellam was sent yesterday to investigate the fire, which occurred several nights ago, in the cookshop and poolroom located at 1111 North Twenty-fifth Street, and was the most astonished of officers when he caught two alleged housebreakers in the very act of leaving the premises with several stolen articles under their arms.

The alleged housebreakers were Robert Brock, fifteen, and James Woodson, thirteen, both colored, and well known to the juvenile authorities. The Woodson boy is on probation at the present time for a similar offense. The boys are alleged to have broken through the rear door of the place and to have stolen a quantity of chewing gum and a number of bottles of soft drinks. They threw most of the stuff away just as Kellam grabbed them. They were sent to the Colored Juvenile Detention Home, and will be arraigned in court on Saturday.

The detective made an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the fire, but was unable to find anything suspicious, according to his report. He had left the building and was standing on the opposite side of the street when he happened to see the negroes moving about within. He ran to the rear of the building and met them as they emerged.

MANY DAIRY HERDS SHOW

RULE MAY CAUSE MILK FAMINE

Chief Health Officer Suggests Plan for Grading Milk Without at This Time Requiring Tuberculin Test of All Dairy Cows.

Facing a serious milk famine and with the knowledge that many of the cows now supplying milk on the Richmond market are affected with tuberculosis, the City Board of Health held a prolonged conference last night with representatives of the Dairywomen's Association, State Dairy and Food Commissioner Purcell was present by invitation. At a late hour the board adjourned without taking decisive action, to meet again in special session on Monday night.

On March 30, 1914, the Board of Health passed a resolution declaring that on and after September 1, all milk sold in Richmond should be from cows which have successfully passed the tuberculin test—that is, cows tested herds from which all reactors had been eliminated. Seventeen months were given the dairywomen to meet this situation, but it now appears that few of them realized conditions, and little preparation was made for the change.

APPALLED AT RECORDS FROM TUBERCULIN TESTS

Recently testing has been going on actively, and both dairymen and health officials have been shocked at the number of cows which have reacted and shown traces of the disease. In the case of small herds at a distance, from which cream is mainly secured, the tests showed little percentage of disease, but when the big milk herds, nearer the city were reached, appalling conditions were found. This week examination was made on one of the largest herds about the city, and in a lot of fine-looking cows, apparently in perfect physical condition, the tests showed prevalence throughout the herd of tuberculosis, and it will be almost wiped out.

Up to this time about half of the cows supplying milk on this market have been tested with very serious results in regard to the prevalence of disease shown to have existed.

MIGHT DRIVE PRICE
BEYOND REACH OF MANY

Under this condition both the dairymen and Chief Health Officer Leavy realized that were the September 1 rule to be enforced a large proportion of the cows now producing milk would be excluded, and the price would go beyond the reach of many people. When it became evident that it would be practically impossible to replace herds wiped out except by the slow process of raising calves, a conference was called by the Board of Health to discuss the situation. With recent tests showing 42 per cent of the cows reactors, it became evident that strict enforcement of the rule would cut the milk supply on September 1 by one-third.

As a solution of this problem, Chief Health Officer Leavy recommended that the time be extended, but that milk be graded under the following conditions:

Grade A—To consist of milk from tuberculin-tested herds from which all reactors have been eliminated, which score on examination 55 or above and have a low bacteriologic count. It would be sold either raw or pasteurized as the dairymen and patrons may prefer.

Grade B—Milk from herds which have not been tested for tuberculosis, but which otherwise come up to requirements and which score on inspection not less than 75, and with a bacteriologic count within the limit prescribed for those of the suburbs.

All Grade B milk to be pasteurized under supervision of agents of the Board of Health.

NEARLY ALL MILK NOW
SOLD IS PASTEURIZED

It was stated that under present conditions approximately 92 per cent of the milk sold in Richmond, including all handled by the two large distributing dairies, was pasteurized, so that the element of actual danger is believed to be limited to a small fraction of those of the suburbs.

owning their own cows or who patronize small and ill-equipped dairies which do not have proper machinery for pasteurizing the output.

The proposition submitted by Chief Health Officer Leavy, the Board of Health at a late hour adjourned to Monday night, when definite action will be taken.

VIRGINIA ABSOLVED

Debt Decision Relieves This State,
Whether West Virginia Pays or Not.

Whatever controversy in which the old bondholders and the State of West Virginia may engage in an effort to compel a settlement of the debt of $12,000,000, the Commonwealth of Virginia cannot be involved in the litigation. So far as this State is concerned, the debt question has been forever settled.

The situation affords the State officials much gratification. They recall that before the State entered suit against West Virginia an agreement was entered into by the State Debt Commission and a committee of the bondholders whereby Virginia was relieved of any liability to the holders of the bonds, their heirs or assigns, in the event that a final decree should be entered by the United States Supreme Court.

The naming of a receiver will end the case for Virginia. Any future action must be taken by the bondholders.

JONES RESOLUTION
WINS IN COMMITTEE

Favors Special Body to Draw Up
New Charter for City.

MINOR AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

Size of Special Committee Is Enlarged—English Leads Fight for Delay—Bemis Presents Views of New Civic Association.

After two slight amendments had been incorporated into the paper, the Jones resolution creating a councilmanic committee to determine upon the advisability of changing the city charter was last night recommended by the Ordinance Committee for adoption by the City Council.

The amendments were offered as the result of a conference between Ordway Puller and Councilman C. C. Jones, patron of the ordinance. They require that the suggestions and report of the citizens' committee shall be referred to the councilmanic committee, and not to the City Council, and that the two committees shall be increased in membership from seven to nine. The councilmanic committee will consist of the presidents of both branches of the City Council, four members from the lower branch and three members from the board. The citizens' committee will have no actual voice in framing or in voting upon such changes as may be suggested, will have a like number.

BEMIS PRESENTS VIEWS OF CIVIC ASSOCIATION

The Civic Association of Richmond was represented by E. L. Bemis, president; Frank W. Duke, executive secretary, and John Stewart Bryan. Mr. Bemis presented to the committee the resolution adopted by the association Monday night, endorsing the Jones resolution and calling upon the City Council for immediate action.

"Our purpose," said Mr. Bemis, in speaking of the association, "is to arouse public interest in this important question and to establish a basis of cordial co-operation between ourselves and the councilmanic committee, and to afford all the assistance we can." It is a big subject, one on which no one can yet make specific suggestions.

C. E. Richards, who was a candidate for the Administrative Board at the time of its creation, also presented the cause of the Civic Association of Richmond, going over much the same ground covered by Arthur Glasgow in his various addresses to the people of Richmond. He said that more depended upon the council than upon the office than upon the form of government. Mr. Puller asked him if he had any specific suggestions to make in regard to municipal reform, and Mr. Richards replied that suggestions would be offered and determined upon later.

ENGLISH LEADS FIGHT FOR DELAY

When the question was first put before the committee, Councilman English moved that the ordinance be referred to a committee of three, the subcommittee to hear the representatives of the Civic Association and all others interested.

It was not necessary for haste," said Mr. English. "It is a matter of vital importance to the public, and we should hear everything that may be said on either side of the question." Mr. English thought that the matter should be gone into at once, and Mr. English temporarily withdrew his motion. Councilman Jones took up the gauntlet for the other side, and urged that the ordinance be adopted immediately by the whole committee. Councilman English then offered his original motion as a substitute for Mr. Jones' motion, and it was lost. English moved that the ordinance be adopted, and the representative of the Civic Association of Richmond were heard.

MINOR CHANGES ARE MADE IN RESOLUTION

It was on the motion of Major L. T. Christian that the ordinance was amended so as to give the citizens' committee report directly to the Councilmanic Committee instead of to the City Council. If there should be, however, a diversity of opinion between the Councilmanic Committee and the committee of citizens, the latter body could have its report and recommendations introduced on the floor of the Council by some member.

The change in the number of membership was made on the motion of Alderman Puller.

Council E. R. Puller introduced a resolution to tax street gas tanks on the streets 6 cents per square foot per annum. The resolution was tabled.

A resolution requesting the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railway Company to make less noise in its West Broad Street yards, was adopted. The committee adopted a resolution granting a thirty-day furlough to Justice Maurice, of the South Richmond Police Court.

ASKS FOR STREET FUNDS

Administrative Board Would Gravel
Thoroughfares Recently Out to Grade.

Commissioner Henry P. Beck, of the Administrative Board, offered a resolution yesterday morning that the City Council be requested, through Mayor Ainslie, to make an appropriation of $50,000 for the improvement of those streets which have recently been graded and where curb and gutter have been installed.

The appropriation, if it be granted, is to be placed to the credit of the streets and streets generally, and is to be used for the specific purpose of graveling the graded streets.

WOMEN ARE RETURNING TO

Justice Crutchfield Scores Policeman Who Arrests One as Vagrant.

DISMISSES MARGARET BARNES

Evidence in Police Court Shows Sixty
Women Living in District Mayor
Once Ordered to Be Closed.
Ainslie Once Ordered to Be Closed.

Margaret Barnes did not appear in court yesterday with her certified check for $5,000, which she claimed represented her savings while conducting a house in the segregated district or the $1,000 worth of diamonds which adorned her person when she was first arrested before Justice Crutchfield on a charge of vagrancy. Although the evidence of wealth was wanting, Justice Crutchfield held that the woman was not a vagrant, as she has a residence at 209 Mayo Street, and dismissed the case. The dismissal is significant in view of the fact that Police-men Goldsby and Campodonia, of the "morality squad," expected to break up the conditions said to exist in that locality by halting the women into court as vagrants.

Instead of winning their case and thus securing the foundation for a crusade against inmates of houses which are located in the former segregated district, Goldsby and Campodonia received a severe call down from Justice Crutchfield when Goldsby stated that the conditions existing in the neighborhood are becoming as bad as they were before Mayor Ainslie's order abolishing the district was put into force.

CRUTCHFIELD LECTURES
POLICE OFFICER

"If that is true, it's a star on the entire Police Department," the justice remarked as he leaned across the edge of his desk and peered into the face of the officer. He then told Goldsby that unsolicited statements of that kind, asserting the ability of brother officers, failed to make a "hit" with him. Justice Crutchfield said he was disposed to be friendly toward the department, and in dismissing the case he stated that he would not tolerate several other policemen had testified that the Barnes woman was not violating the law to their knowledge, indicated that policemen should be expected to use it as a lever to regulate the women who continue to live in and to frequent houses in the once segregated district. However, the charge against the Barnes woman was dismissed for lack of sufficient evidence, and the charges against the other women were continued until July 1.

WOMEN RETURNING TO OLD SEGREGATED DISTRICT

On the witness stand, Goldsby testified that he had known the Barnes woman for six years, and that during that time she had always lived in the segregated district. She had never worked during that time. The officer then remarked that the women appeared to be persisting in establishing themselves on Mayo Street again, the general impression among them being that they were to be allowed to run as before, though on a somewhat more quiet scale.

Goldsby added that three weeks ago there were forty-eight women living in the old segregated district, while there are sixty living there at the present time. Conditions are believed to be much the same as they were before the Mayor's order went into effect, the officer remarked. It was at this point that the court took him to task for slurring at brother officers. Goldsby later said that he did not mean conditions were as bad as formerly, but Justice Crutchfield's only remark was that the officer had so stated.

Major Werner said he viewed the women now living on Mayo Street with suspicion, but that he was not in a position to show they are violating the law. He informed the court that the department would not act on "framing up" denizens of the district to secure a conviction, a stand which the court thought proper. The case was dismissed without the defense putting on a single witness.
